"ANOTHA ONE" South Carolina and Orlando meet for the ninth time this season on Sunday afternoon in North Charleston. Three of South Carolina's next four games come against the Solar Bears. The Stingrays this season are 6-2 against Orlando, and have outscored the Solar Bears 26-19 in the contests. The Stingrays blanked Orlando on Friday night, 2-0, at the Kia Center.

WILKS' WEEK Stingrays forward Josh Wilkins was named the ECHL Player of the Week on Tuesday after a massive week. The Raleigh, NC native scored four goals and added three assists for seven points in four games. Wilkins notched a hat trick, while adding an assist in the 6-1 win over Orlando, then had a goal and assist on Friday, and another assist Saturday.

PK COMING TO PLAY South Carolina's penalty kill has sorted out its struggles over the past few weeks. In the month of December, the Stingrays penalty kill is working at over 90%, and has allowed only two power play goals across the last seven games, which was during a five-minute major penalty. South Carolina is now operating at 83.2% this season, which has entered them into the top half in the league.

POWER PLAY PRODUCTION The Stingrays powerplay has become a big factor of South Carolina's success this season. SC's PP is working at a 23.1% clip, fourth best in the ECHL. At home this season, the Stingrays are 14/49 (28.6%), the fourth highest rated PP in the ECHL while at home. The Stingrays have scored on the power play in eight of the last ten games.

STACKING AGAINST THE DIVISION The Stingrays continue a very South Division heavy schedule this December. South Carolina against the South Division this season is 15-10-1-0, while holding a 2-0 record against the North Division. 60 of South Carolina's 72 games this season are against the South Division, including this stretch of 16 straight games against opponents in the division.
