WELCOME, WALLEYE South Carolina hosts the Toledo Walleye on Friday evening for the first time in exactly two years. The last meeting between the clubs was on March 13, 2024, a 5-4 win for the Stingrays. South Carolina and Toledo have met 29 times in the regular season, with the Stingrays holding a record of 23-5-1. Toledo comes into Friday night after a 5-3 win over Savannah on Thursday in Savannah, Georgia.

POWER PLAY PRODUCTION After a quiet stretch for most of February, the Stingrays power play has sorted out its struggles over the past four games. South Carolina is four for its last six on the power play, including going 1-for-2 last Friday night against Atlanta. Overall, South Carolina's power play is working at 19.4%, which is 13th best in the ECHL.

HOME SWEET HOME The Stingrays continue their five-game homestand with Toledo this evening, wrapping up the homestand on Saturday night. At home this season, the Stingrays are 21-8-0 with a +18 goal differential. The Stingrays became only the second team in the ECHL this season to reach 20 wins at home, only trailing league leading Kansas City with 25 wins.

SAW A GHOST PIRATE The Stingrays went down early last Sunday against Savannah, but responded with three unanswered goals in the first and second period. Charlie Combs tied the game less than two minutes after the Ghost Pirates opener before Dean Loukus put South Carolina ahead. Leading 3-2 in the 3rd, Ty Taylor shut the door to give SC a 3-2 victory.

FINALLY A FRESH FACE After 24 consecutive games against the South Division, the Stingrays play eight of their next nine games against the Western Conference. Friday night against Toledo will be the first time since January 4 that the Stingrays play a non-divisional opponent. South Carolina is 33-18-1 against the South Division while holding a 4-0 record against teams outside of the division.
