Cross Country

The Mariners have traveled over 2,700 miles for a three-game series against the Idaho Steelheads this week, continuing their road-heavy start to the 2026-27 season. The voyage from Portland to Boise is one of the longest by distance in the ECHL, with the Mariners serving as the league's east-most club and the Steelheads representing it's second-most westward franchise (just behind the Tahoe Knight Monsters). The trip marks the second all-time for the Mariners to Boise, as they visited for a three-game set in February of 2023, losing all three games. The Mariners are in a run of four consecutive games against the Western Conference, having defeated the Central Division's Wheeling Nailers at home last Tuesday. Later this season, they'll also see the Fort Wayne Komets, Bloomington Bison, and Indy Fuel from the Central. Idaho is their only Mountain Division opponent of the season.

Well Rested

The Mariners enjoyed a rare full weekend off, and have not played in eight days since their home win over Wheeling on November 10th. With just nine games played, the Mariners have played fewer games than any team in the ECHL (Orlando is also at 9), holding as many as six games in hand on division foe Norfolk, which has already played 15. The Steelheads are also on the lower end of games played at 10, in part due to three recent home games that had to be postponed because of ice issues at Idaho Central Arena. Tonight is their first home game since October 24th.

MAINE MARINERS COACH BIOS 2026-27

Head Coach & General Manager Rick Kowalsky (2nd season)

Rick Kowalsky was named the fourth head coach in Mariners history on Aug. 6, 2025, also earning the title of General Manager. He was signed to a three-year contract extension in August of 2026. Rick boasts 21 years of experience coaching in professional hockey, leading the AHL's Bridgeport Islanders prior to coming to Maine, where he served as head coach from 2023-25, following two years as assistant coach. Prior to his time in Bridgeport, Kowalsky worked his way up the coaching ladder in the New Jersey Devils organization, rising all the way from the ECHL to the NHL. He secured his first head coaching job with the ECHL's Trenton Titans in 2006, spending four seasons there (including ECHL Coach of the Year in 2009), before being elevated to the head job with the AHL's Albany Devils in 2010. He was named AHL Coach of the Year in 2016. After eight seasons with New Jersey's AHL club (including his final season in Binghamton), the Devils moved him to the NHL bench to become an assistant coach in 2018, where he'd spend three seasons. Kowalsky is in the ECHL Hall of Fame (class of 2017), was a two-time ECHL All-Star, and a Kelly Cup Champion in his final playing season with Trenton (2004-05). A native of Simcoe, Ontario, Kowalsky played three seasons with the Portland Pirates from 1996-99, posting 72 points in 108 games. In his playing career, he skated in 516 career ECHL games and another 183 in the AHL. Although he never played an NHL game, he was a 10th round pick of the Buffalo Sabres in 1992, selected 227th overall.

Assistant Coach Zach Tolkinen (3rd season)

The first captain in franchise history, Tolkinen was named Assistant Coach in August 2024 under Terrence Wallin, after Johnny McInnis stepped down from the role. He returns for his third season in the role and second under Rick Kowalsky. An ECHL veteran of over 450 games, "Tolks" sported the "C" for the Mariners over their first two seasons from 2018-2020. The 35-year-old was born in Lino Lakes, MN and played collegiately at Quinnipiac University, before making his ECHL debut for the Elmira Jackals in 2014. Along the way, Zach also played for the Missouri Mavericks, Rapid City, Rush, and Wheeling Nailers. He spent his final playing season with the Fort Wayne Komets in 2021-22.
